

The Pedagogical Prize

Criteria

Since 2006, NCK's pedagogical prize has been awarded annually to any person or institution that has made outstanding contributions to the field of heritage learning in the Nordic/Baltic region. The awardee shall through his/her work give good examples for inspiration and contribute to promoting heritage learning and reaching out to a larger audience.

- You are not allowed to nominate yourself or your institution.
- The nomination should comprise of a short description of the person's/institution's work within heritage learning and how the person/institution has inspired, contributed to and influenced the work conducted in the field, coupled with a statement on the reasons why the nominator thinks the nominee should be awarded the prize.

The awardee will receive a diploma, 25 000 sek, and the honour of being one of the keynote speakers at the next NCK spring conference.
